MAYOR SAYS TELEPHONE DEAL IS OGDEN GAS DEAL ALL OVER AGAIN

Harrison Says He Broke With Roger Sullivan When He

"TO LET THE CHICAGO TELEPHONE CO. BUY THE AUTOMATIC FOR $6,300,000 AND CHARGE THE PEOPLE OF CHICAGO INTEREST ON THAT MONEY WOULD BE THE OGDEN GAS DEAL ALL OVER AGAIN."

That's one thing Mayor Harrison said to a Day Book reporter when asked what he thought of the absorption of the Automatic by the Bell.

"The Ogden Gas franchise had a forfeiture clause in it, too; it was to be forfeited if the Ogden Gas Co. sold out to another company. That's when I fell out with Roger Sullivan—when I vetoed an ordinance in 1900 to let the sale be made.

"Later, in 1906, the permission was given by the city, and today the people of Chicago are paying interest on what the Peoples Gas Co. paid for the Ogden. It amounts to about $7,000,000. Sullivan and I fell out in 1900 when I opposed the deal, and we've been out ever since.
